Annual Class "Scraps" At Rock Coun-

Recent Years.

[By United Press.]
Beloit, Wis., Sept. 22.—Hostilities between the Freshmen and Sophomores of Beloit college, which have marked the opening night of the school year culminated last night in the finest class scrap of the institution. For more than an hour the two classes fought desperately. For a time the Freshmen were victorious, however, Sophs intercepted rigs which they were bringing to the scene to take their opponents into the country and gave them a long ride. The Freshmen hoisted their flag but the Sophomores grasped the pole and cut the ropes. This animal came rush will take place tomorrow afternoon.

LOST CHILD FOUND NEAR HOME TODAY

LITTLE LORAIN KORDAN DIS-COVERED IN FIELD ON HUGH
HALF PAST EIGHT
THIS MORNING.

SEARCHED ALL NIGHT

Child Had Wandered Away From Home Last Night Looking For Father and Lost Its Way Walking Through Fields And Corn Patches.

After an all-night search, in which the surrounding country was secured,
little Lorain Kordan, daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Albert Kordan, who reside about four miles north of the city on the Chicago farm, near the county farm,
was found about half past eight o'clock
this morning by a searching party in a field on the Chicago farm, now owned by Hugh Hemingway, about a mile southeast of her home.

Traced by Tracks.
The party, composed of about twenty men from nearby farms and from this city, traced the lost child from her home to the place where she was found through her tracks in the drowsy grass and footmarks in fields she had crossed. As they approached, they heard the child crying and ran to where she was sitting in the field, near the fence, about a quarter of a mile from the tower at the crossing off the St. Paul and Northwestern railroads.
The little girl was first spotted by Theo.
Hackbart, a brother-in-law of Mr.
Kordan, who ran to the child, picked her up and wrapped his coat around her.

At the sight of the men, the little girl changed her cry to laughter and when picked up by Mr. Hackbart cried out, "Daddy come." The news of the discovery was flashed to the district and mother and other members of the family, at the house, by the waying of hats and coats and some men in a big rush the child to its mother, who almost overcame by the strenuous night of worry and weeping, broke forth into tears of joy when her daughter was placed in her arms.
Loving hands did all that was possible
to remedy the effects of the night's ex-posure for the child and the most severe results that will be experienced by the child will probably be no worse than a bad cold.

Mixed at Six.
The little girl was soaked through
and although her father and mother
fields and the cold night air, but it was a happy father and mother who greeted her on her return. She was dressed only in light clothing, but it is thought that no serious result will follow her night in the open.
The child was missed by the family about six o'clock last night. She had been with the family in the house and had said she was going outside to play with her "daddy." Ten minutes later no trace of her could be found
and although her father and mother searched all about the place they could not find her. Neighbors were called and aided in the search and the sheriff and the police department were notified. Sheriff E. H. Hanson, Chief of Police Applegate, District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, Officers Fleming and Hallen went out in an automobile and joined the searchers. A search of several hours was made by the officials
but nothing was found and they returned to this city, an automobile load of officers and men from this city going out to the farm again early this morning to take up the search. Neighbors of the Kordans, with lanterns worked all night.

Acting on a "clue" furnished by a clairvoyant in this city, who said the child had wandered along the road,
passed a white house, was picked up
by two men and carried across a river,
they worked west of the Kordan homestead all along the road to the Four Mile Bridge and across the river were aroused in an effort to locate the child,
but with no results and the search in this direction was taken up again
this morning.

Find Real "Clue."
The real "clue" in the search was picked up this morning by a party who went north from the home. In a lane leading to the fields on the farm, prints of the child's sandals were found in the grass and small prints of the pet kitten of the child were discovered.
The tracks led through a corn field on the farm of Thomas Knoeland, then south again across the potato patch of the county farm to the road. Pieces of her dress were found where the child had crawled through wire fences.
The child crossed the road about a half mile from her home and went into a stubble field on the property owned by the county and into Mr. Hemingway's field. "There was no evidence of any place where the child had slept
during the night, but it is thought that she must have become too weary to go any further and laid down to sleep. The pet kitten followed her part of the way, but returned to the house between nine and ten o'clock,
probably leaving the child when it lay down to sleep. In one of the corn fields there were marks in the soft earth, showing where she had fallen.

Looked for Father.
The cause of her wandering off is thought to be that she was looking for her father, whom she thought had gone out into the field near the house.
When the searchers picked her up this morning, she said, "I'm looking for papa," and said he was feeding Nellie, one of the horses, and she went out to find him. One of the first remarks she made when taken to her mother was, "Daddy didn't come."
The little girl has gone through her experiences remarkably well for one so young and this afternoon was playing about the house. She is not yet
three years of age, her third birthday coming on November 3. She is small for her age, but exceedingly bright.
She has light yellow hair and a light complexion. At the time of her disappearance she was dressed in a red calico dress with small white polka-dots, and wore tan barefoot sandals.
Mrs. Kordan spent a sleepless night weeping over the disappearance of her small daughter and the strain has been greatest on her, although the case caused her husband a great deal of worry and anxiety. Ladies in the neighborhood and relatives of the family, however, did their best to comfort

her and the family feel most grateful to those who lent their aid and sympathy. They desire to express their thanks to the officials, the neighbors and all who aided in the search for their work.

Bloodhounds on Scent.
Various theories were expounded
last night by the officials in their work,
one of these being that of kidnapping,
as several automobiles had passed the house about the time the child disappeared. This idea was scouted, however, by the fact that the family are not wealthy and there could be no possible motive for stealing the little girl.
The other theory which proved to be correct, was that the youngster had wandered off. In order to restore her to her parents as soon as possible, it was decided last night to send for bloodhounds to trace her and accordingly Sheriff Hanson telephoned to Drecker, Ill., to have the dogs brought here. The man with the animals arrived about noon today over the Northwestern railroad—the child being found too late to send word not to send the animals. However, in order to determine the efficiency of the animals and
of what value they would be in tracing down persons sought by the sheriff or police officials, the dogs were put on the scent to follow out the child's route.

EDGERTON WOMAN IS MENTALLY DERANGED

Miss Sarah McKee, Who Imagines She Is Kindergarten Teacher Being Cared For At Home of Sheriff Hanson.

Turnkey Philo Kemp this morning
took in charge a woman who gave her name as Sarah McKee, who is slightly unbalanced mentally, and who has been living in the city for the past two weeks, posing as a teacher in the kindergarten of the Jefferson school.
The woman, who is about thirty years of age, resides in Edgerton and except for the mental delusion talks perfectly rational. For the past two weeks she has boarded at a home near the high school building, where she told the lady with whom she made her home, that she was teaching. Each morning for a week, she left the house, saying she was going to her work and returned about noon, so that she had all the appearances of being what she said she was. When asked where she taught, she said in the kindergarten of the Jefferson school. The young woman has remained at her boarding house, she has even had little for several days past and it is thought
this has weakened her condition.
Miss McKee claims Madison as her home, and gave the name of George McKee, 982 Gilmore street, as her father's name and address. She declares that she has ever lived in Edgerton although Marshall Dunn of that city, who was here on business today
advised that she had resided there for a number of years. The unfortunate woman is possessed of some educational and talks perfectly rational on some subjects. As evidence of her honesty, she left her watch with her landlady whenever she went out as security for her board.

A sister of Miss McKee arrived this afternoon from Edgerton to make arrangements for taking care of her. The woman is being cared for at Sheriff Hanson's home.

PLEASANT COMEDY AT MYERS THEATER

"A Bachelor's Honeymoon" Proved To Be Laugh-Producing Production
Which Pleased Audience.

Lovers of a wholesome and hearty laugh had a good opportunity to "laugh
and grow fat" last night in witnessing the comedy of misunderstandings that was so pleasingly portrayed in "A Bachelor's Honeymoon," at the Myers Theater. From the time the curtain was raised at the opening of the first act until it dropped at the close and shot off the view of a most gratifying climax to the long list of blunders made by the unfortunate Mr. Bachelor in his attempts to conceal his secret marriage from an old maid sister,
there was mirth in great abundance.
The central figure in the play was Benjamin Bachelor, a widower, who,
according to the will of his late father
should not be disinherited if he married again without the approval of his maiden sister. Unknown to his sister
he married an actress, the pretty June Joyce, so ably represented by Mary Bigelow. Bringing his bride home, while his two daughters with their maiden aunt were away he hopes to spend his honeymoon quietly and to win the approval of his sister upon her return. Intrusion of the servants and the unexpected return of the girl and her attempt to explain his relations with the strange woman whom he introduced to his sister as the governess whom he brought from New York to take care of the two girls.
Having kept from his wife the knowledge that he was the father of two children the bewildered bridegroom encountered difficulties on that side of the house also. In his attempt to explain matters he invariably divulged
more of the secrets than he wished to. He finally succeeded so well in "getting his foot into it" every time
he opened his mouth that he declared that he would have to keep his mouth shut or he wouldn't have a leg to stand on. The appearance of the German doctor, Schwarz, an old lover of the little actress and the busy lawyer, a new victim to her charms, increased the bewilderment of the whole family increasing the doubts of the sister and of the girls concerning the motives of the widower and led them
to misjudge the actress.

When June Joyce explains to her husband how the misunderstandings have left a shadow over her name and reputation and how it was necessary for her to defend her it was then that Mr. Bachelor forgot the interest he centered in the legacy, which he feared he would lose with the good will of his sister and showed that he had faith in his wife the former regardless of the consequences, closing the play with a happy and satisfactory explanation of attempts at explanation throughout the three scenes.
Fred Clement in the role of Mr.
Bachelor won the hearty approval of the audience as did all the other actors and actresses who played the minor parts.

The crowd in attendance was only fair sized, but not so large as should have been attracted by a wholesome and laugh producing play of this nature. Those who were so fortunate as to be present went away greatly pleased with the performance.

LaFollette in Attack.
Madison, Sept. 22.—In a bitter editorial in the current issue of LaFollette's magazine, Senator LaFollette,
independent presidential candidate,
demands the retirement of "plotters"
who sought to oust Dr. Harvey Wiley, chief chemist, specifically naming Attorney General Wickersham and Senator McCabe.

NERVOUS DEBILITY SYMPTOMS ARE PAIN

Stomach Trouble, Uneasy Sleep, Nervousness, Little Energy, No
Vitality, etc., Tona Vita Brings Back Health.

The country is filled with half sick,
worn out, nervous people. The cause is nervous debility and it is produced by the strain and worry of modern life.

The symptoms of nervous debility
are stomach trouble, uneasy sleep,
nervousness, little energy, or vitality,
constipation, poor circulation, bad memory, cold feet, weak back and susceptibility to coughs and colds.

A man or woman afflicted with this debilitated condition has little happiness, as the trouble always produces a mental depression that causes the sufferer to look on the gloomy side of life, and be disheartened with the present and have small hope for the future.

Anything to be successful, should add to the happiness of the human race. No medicine ever before sold in the United States has been so remotely successful as the wonderful new tonic "Tona Vita." The reason is plain. "Tona Vita" is bringing back health and happiness to thousands of discouraged, "run-down" men and women.

Are you in this rundown debilitated condition? Do you tire easily, sleep poorly and feel half dead most of the time? If you are you can get immediate relief and renew your ability to fight life's battles by letting this great Tonic build you up and restore your strength. Don't drag around feeling miserable and hopeless another day.
You will positively be astonished how quickly "Tona Vita" will start you on the road to health. The tonic is sold with the distinct understanding that it must renew your health, or the price is refunded.

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is an assistant remedy to "Tona Vita." It is to be used in cases of chronic constipation. There is no plant known to modern medicine so thoroughly reliable and harmless as rhubarb. It is nature's own laxative and instead of straining the intestines, like other drugs, tones them up and gives them
new strength. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is the safest possible laxative for children and they like the taste. It should be in every household.

These two great preparations are sold in Janesville by The Smith Pharmacy.

MEN'S SHOES $1.00 PER PAIR.

An Unusual Chance to Economize on Shoes.

We have about 100 pairs of men's

SPORTS

FOOTBALL SEASON TO OPEN TOMORROW

First Games on Gridiron Will Be Played Among Some of the Smaller College Teams.

(Special to the Gazette.)
New York, Sept. 22.—Football will appear on the athletic stage tomorrow to formally open the fall season of sport at the Eastern colleges. In the middle West there will be a few preliminary skirmishes, but throughout the South and West generally the teams will not get under way for another week or two.

In this section of the country the season promises to be one of the most important in the history of the gridiron game. The new rules this year are not very different from those of last season and the early games will not bother the coaches much in trying out possibilities, as was the case last year, when radical changes had been made. There will be some experimenting of course, but the early contests will be devoted more to sifting material and looking over the possibilities of new material.

This year's schedule calls for more games than ever before, that is on the whole, but not as applied to several of the bigger teams. The University of Pennsylvania will close the schedule by playing Cornell on Thanksgiving day.

Yale's first game will be played on Saturday week with Holy Cross and a week later they will tackle Harvard thus affording an early opportunity to compare Yale and Harvard scores against a common opponent. The Yale Army game comes early, as last year. Later Yale will line up against Brown, Princeton and Harvard, meeting the latter at Cambridge on Nov. 25.

Among the new plums on the schedule the biggest is the Harvard-Princeton battle to be fought at Princeton Nov. 4. They last met fourteen years ago, when the Tigers lowered the Crimson colors. Harvard will resume relations with the Carlele Indians this year. In the week following the Carlele game and preceding the battle with Yale the Crimson will play Dartmouth, which is always one of the biggest attractions on the Harvard schedule.

Brown, as usual, plays Harvard, Yale and Pennsylvania, and will close the season with a game at Providence with the Carlele Indians.

The important change in the Indiana schedule will be resumption of relations with Harvard, after an interval of two years. In the course of the season the Indians will meet Georgetown, University of Pittsburgh, Lafayette, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Syracuse, John Hopkins and Brown. Carlele has played all of these teams in former years, with the exception of Lafayette.

Intercollegiate games will feature the season's play. Michigan will come east to meet Pennsylvania, Cornell and Syracuse, and Syracuse will go west to play Ohio State and St. Louis. Cornell in addition to the game with Michigan, will also line up against the University of Chicago.

The principal games to be played against the Eastern colleges tomorrow are as follows:
University of Virginia vs. Hampden-Sydney College, at Charlottesville, Va.
Carlele Indians vs. Lebanon Valley at Carlele, Pa.

University of Maine vs. Port Mainer, at Orono, Me.

Yale College vs. New Hampshire State College, at Durham, N. H.

Colby College vs. Kents Hill, at Waterville, Me.

Holy Cross College vs. Boston College at Worcester, Mass.

Lafayette College vs. Bloomsburg Normal at Easton, Pa.

Gettysburg College vs. Middletown College, at Gettysburg, Pa.

Delaware College vs. Williamson, at Newark, Del.

Rhode Island State College vs. Massachusetts Agricultural College, at Amherst, Mass.

Connecticut Agricultural College vs. Rockyville, at Storrs, Conn.

Reinhardt Polytechnic vs. Clarkson Tech, at Troy, N. Y.

MARQUETTE SQUAD IS READY FOR WORK

Leigh Woodworth of This City Is Promising Candidate on Milwaukee School's Eleven.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 22.—The Marquette University football squad numbering 49 candidates for positions on the varsity teams, went into training at the camp at Golden Lake where they will be put through the first real work in preparation for a hard season, this week. The local university's chances for a winning eleven look good as there are twelve "A" men back and some very promising new material to choose from. The list of new candidates is particularly large from the departments of medicine and dentistry but the new school of journalism and the school of business administration have sent in not a few.

Several of the second team men of last year are out trying for the varsity team and Woodworth of Janesville, is one of those who has been donning football togs daily and showing up well in practice.

The men will be put through some hard work by Coach Juneau who has charge of the boys again this year and by the time they leave camp on October 2, they will be in good shape to play the eleven from Wabash College on October 7. The local team expects to easily win from the Wabash warriors.

The "M" men back and out for practice are: Breunlin, Woodke, Hanley, Wetherhagen, McCusker, Hanley, Schaller, Capwell and Capt. Munnell.

Fights Scheduled for Tonight.

"Kid" McCoy vs. "Kid" Ely, 10 rounds, at New York City.

"Cy" Smith vs. Leo Houck 10 rounds at Lancaster, Pa.

Eddie Johnson vs. "Pie" Davis, 10 rounds, at Pueblo, Colo.

Canadian Athletic Championships.

Montreal, Sept. 22.—If number and high class of entries count for anything, then some record-breaking performances may be looked for at the 28th annual track and field championships of the Canadian A. A. U. which are to take place in Montreal tomorrow afternoon. The cream of the Dominion athletes are entered in the various events and an international flavor will be given the meeting by the participation of a number of star performers of New York and New England.

The championship events will include the following: 100 yards; 440 yards; 880 yards; mile; five miles; 7 mile walk; pole vault; running high jump; broad jump; boy, skip and jump; 16-pound hammer throw; 55-pound weight throw for distance; putting the 16-pound shot; throwing the discus and the 120 yard hurdles.

Autumn Meeting at Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 22.—Every thing is in readiness at Woodbine Park for the opening tomorrow of the autumn meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club. The club officials expect the meeting to be one of the best ever held in Toronto. The horses have returned to the autumn meeting thoroughly seasoned after the summer's campaign and the quality of the thoroughbreds will make the contention for the stakes and purses the keenest

American typewriters are sold all over the world. Millions are in use. Nothing else that has been invented has been so potent in affording business opportunity for women. It was after she had entered business as a typist that woman began to branch out into other lines of endeavor.

FISH ARE TRANSFERRED TO PROVIDE BUILDING SITE FOR AQUEDUCT SYSTEM

New York, Sept. 22.—While the period immediately preceding the first of October is made the occasion of a change of residence by a large proportion of the dwellers of Greater New York and brings a rich harvest to the operators of moving vans, it is safe to say that the unique moving job of the season is one that is taking place this week among a large delegation of the city's busy population. In connection with the building of the new aqueduct system which is to give the city a larger water supply it became necessary to drain Kensico Lake in the Croton watershed. This has long been known to anglers as the home of some of the finest bass in this part of the state. Sooner than lose this valuable collection an appropriation was made to transfer them to another nearby lake and a large force of men has been set to the task of making the transfer with as little injury and inconvenience to the fish as possible. The fish are taken in big nets, transferred to large cans and carried by motor trucks to their new home, three miles distant. Ten thousand game fish have been moved thus far and the work is still under way. As a special mark of distinction the largest of the bass, an eight pounder, was separated from his fellows and placed in the city's aquarium.

NOVEL COURSE IS PLANNED AT STATE UNIVERSITY

School of Music at University of Wisconsin Gives Course on How to Appreciate Good Music.
(Special to the Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 22.—Believing that the general American public does not appreciate good music at its true value to which any student in the university is admitted without previous musical knowledge. The novel feature about this course is the use of an electric piano-player capable of the most delicate reproduction of musical compositions, to demonstrate the beauty hidden in the compositions of the great masters. Two regular university credits are allowed each semester for this course. The work consists of lectures, with illustrations on the piano-player, in all the principles of musical structure, methods, aesthetics and criticism. The work begins with a consideration of the simpler forms of musical composition, such as the aria, the anthem, and the sonata, from which it then proceeds to the analysis of larger compositions, such as symphonies, operas and oratorios.

To Remedy Corrosion.

Corrosion in metals is said to be prevented by the passage through the metals of a weak current of electricity. This is a "like-cure-like" treatment, for the pitting of metals is said to be due to the local electrical action, that is, feeble current developed by the cellular water on dissimilar metals, often impurities in the metal itself, at the point of corrosion.

LOOKING FOR A MATCH WITH JOHNSON.
Jim Flynn, from a most recent photograph copyrighted by Underwood and Underwood.

New York City.—Having demonstrated his superiority over the much-touted "White Hope" Carl Morris, Jim Flynn, who for years has been classed as only a single rather at best, looms on the horizon as the only logical opponent to meet the present title-holder, Jack Johnson. There are many who think Flynn is today a worthy opponent of the colored heavyweight, though most critics fail to see any possibility of a match between Johnson and Flynn.

DEFEAT OF RECIPROCITY.

The overwhelming defeat of reciprocity in the Canadian election yesterday indicates that is a difficult thing to estimate public sentiment on questions of public policy. The extra session of congress was called for the express purpose of adopting reciprocity with Canada and while much unexpected opposition developed, the President had no thought that the same sort of opposition would develop beyond the border.

The Canadian parliament was overwhelmingly liberal and ready to meet the United States more than half way on agreement. President Taft believed, as did every body else, that Canada was ready to ratify any agreement that America proposed, and the President felt so sure of his ground that no thought was given to opposition on the other side.

Just what led to the landslide in Canada, many never be known. The organized opposition in this country was among the farmers, and the Canadian election shows that the strongest opposition in the Dominion was from the agricultural classes.

The fact that the farmers of both countries were united to defeat the measure, indicates that widespread ignorance prevailed concerning the question, and that premature action on our part was unwise.

One of the causes of defeat, apparent on the surface, is found in the fact that the Canadian voter was led to believe that reciprocity was the entering wedge for annexation, and loyalty to the mother country is a Canadian characteristic.

Champ Clark, Democratic speaker of the House, in defending his support of the bill, was unfortunate in saying: "I am for it because I hope to see the day when the American flag will float over every square foot of the British North American possessions clear to the North Pole. They are people of our blood. They speak our language. Their institutions are much like ours. They are trained in the difficult art of self-government. My judgment is that if the treaty of 1851 had been abrogated the chances of a consolidation of these two countries would have been much greater than they now are."

This became the "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" slogan of the Canadian campaign, and was heralded by speakers as the motive for American zeal in the reciprocity movement. Clark attempted to explain, but the harm had been done and apologies were worse than useless.

President Taft is without doubt the most surprised man in the country. Just how results will affect his political future may be forecast with certainty, but time will soon determine.

The conservative wing of his own party reluctantly supported the measure against better judgment, while many of the progressives openly opposed it. The Democrats gave liberal support for political purposes and when the bill was finally passed, its complexion was difficult to determine.

how had the final say, and no further argument is necessary.

The time will come when the imaginary line which separates the countries will cease to be a bar to trade relations, and the initial effort will hasten the day.

HALF A CENTURY RECORD.

On September 16 the Post Office Savings Bank of Great Britain celebrated its jubilee, 300 post offices having commenced savings bank business on September 16, 1861. There are now some 15,300 post offices in the United Kingdom transacting savings bank business, and the last published returns state that over $3,000,000 depositors had nearly $1,000,000,000 due to them on Dec. 31, 1910.

The record of English postal banking indicates the popularity of the business in the Old World. America has been slow to adopt the postal savings bank, but the popularity of the limited number in operation is evidence that the people are ready for the innovation and will render liberal support without opportunity offers.

Janesville will be able to study the situation at close range as one of these banks is to be opened here tomorrow. The prediction is made that it will stimulate small savings without interfering with other banks and that the money thus secured for circulation will be new money which through illness has been of no benefit to the community.

Elbert Hubbard says: "The man with the savings bank habit is the one who will never get laid off; he's the one who can get along without you, but you cannot get along without him. The savings bank habit means sound sleep, good digestion, cool judgment and manly independence. The most healthful thing I know of is a savings bank book—there are no nukes in it to steal away your peace of mind. It is a guarantee of good behavior."

The postal banks will answer the purpose of unleashing a lot of idle money and encouraging people to cultivate the saving habit. The schools in some of the cities are conducting a savings bank campaign for the scholars as an object lesson in thrift and economy. The government bank may prove a popular resort for this class of small depositors. There is nothing more elusive than a stray dollar and the following expression from an exchange is typical:

"I had a little gold piece once and put it safe away.
To buy an auto or a farm, or for a rainy day;

And scarcely was it hid away, need came for it, and then
I showed aside the auto plans and dug it up again.

Nobody knows where money goes; it's here, and then it's not;
It moves so fast the wonder is it don't get burning hot;

And all the satisfaction one gets from its being spent
Is knowing that he had it once, and saw it as it went."

The best thing to do with Center Avenue is to narrow up the street to the width of the ordinary street, give the abutting property the land for a front lawn for the consideration of a well maintained street and then let the city keep it in repair. If the avenue was a boulevard, it is ever likely to be there, might be some sense in preserving the width, but the city has no use for it, and never will have.

A little group of old-time politicians who have not yet discovered that they are beat, are planning to contest the state delegation to the Republican National Convention in the hope of dividing it in the interests of Taft. That's the silliest proposition from a party standpoint that has yet been suggested. If Senator LaFollette is a candidate, he is entitled to the support of his own state in the convention.

The following states have abolished the use of the public drinking cup:
Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Wisconsin, Kansas, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Vermont and Oregon.

Manufacturers of folding cups and paper towels are doing a thriving business.

Penny postage is now being agitated by Postmaster General Hitchcock and the next congress will be asked to take action. This is a move in the right direction, and more important than showing a credit balance in the operating expenses of the department.

A Harvard graduate recently inherited a million dollars. He is also endowed with good horse sense and is now plugging away at nine dollars a week in a retail store in order to learn the business in which his father made a fortune.

In the few speeches already made by President Taft during the past week, the people have discovered that he is honest in his convictions concerning the tariff and Canadian reciprocity, and that he has no disposition to be a "trimmer" for the sake of personal popularity.

He is a progressive of the sane and conservative type, a safe man to preside over the destinies of a nation, and people will honor themselves by honoring him for a second term.

The Sharon and South Sharon mills in Pennsylvania paid out $250,000 last week for labor, representing the largest pay roll for a number of months. It is gratifying to know that prosperity is returning to the industrial world.

The state of Colorado has nearly two hundred million dollars invested in factories, with an annual output of about one hundred and fifty million dollars.

The weary evening wore away, at last he had the said

To walk across the room and take her

He softly stroked her golden hair and

He bent quite slowly over her and then

He lightly kissed her on the cheek.

Quite horrified the maiden cried:

"Your kisses I forbid!"

"Stop it at once!" she ordered and

He did, then, at once, he did.

(She called him a clown.)

Another came another night and grasped her in his arms.

He lost no time in mooning over the manner of her charms.

He didn't let his suit grow stale or conversation lag.

He pressed her to his manly heart and

said, "I love you, Mac."

He kissed her right upon the lips.

"That's what the fellow did."

Quite horrified, the maiden cried:

"Your kisses I forbid!"

"I thought you were a gentleman. Be-lease me right away."

"I'll teach you that to be a hour does not in this case pay."

She said if he kissed her again

She'd show him to the door.

He grabbed her in his manly arms

And kissed her nine times more.

(She married him.)

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THESE?

The folding hat rack that used to hang in the hall.

The old-fashioned couples that used to go out buggy riding.

The folks who used to eat dinner in the middle of the day.

The good old lady in steel-rimmed

eyeglasses who used to make crullers

and put up yams.

Those student lamps that used to adorn every home.

The what-not that stood in the corner and held everything from a Chinese idol to a case of wax flowers.

The crayon portraits that used to hang in the parlor.

The foot scraper that used to be seen on every front stoop.

Those brilliantly painted lambris-

who had a pet corn.

OLD ADAM.

He didn't have a stylish wife

Who followed all of fashion's fads

With rats and hobble skirts and pads

She never begged his accounts

In running bills of large amounts

For yellow plumes and four-foot hats

And fancy high-heeled shoes and spurs.

And evening gowns of festive fair

She wore no jewels in her hair

She never had a desire to skip

to Europe for a summer trip.

In social realms she didn't shine

And never had to stand in line

At swell receptions dressed to kill

There was no unpaid modiste's bill

Though like all women everywhere,

She never sulked about the fact

But got along with wondrous tact.

The servant problem pestered her not

She never worried over her lot

Or caused a single family jar

Because she had no touring car.

And last, but not the least to note,

She didn't even want to vote.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR BURGLARS.

If there is one thing more than another that we hate to see it is a house all messed up by burglars. They have a very unpleasant habit of pulling

open bureau drawers and scattering the contents about recklessly and tearing up the carpets in search of hidden treasure. We wish to offer any burglars who visit our domicile the following hints:

1. Do not touch the pearl shirt studs, which cost 39 cents when we were married five years ago, are still buy, but you have to hit a boob with a brick house.

When a fellow spends all of his time blowing about what he has done and what he is going to do, you can make up your mind that he ain't doing much right now.

A fellow who talks with a cigar in his mouth is a good one to keep your eyes on in a busy trade.

Willie Handus has saved up nearly two dollars in pennies in his little

bank and his father is going to buy

him a nice new back-saver with a birthday present. His father gave his mother a nice new washboard for Christmas last year.

I don't know who the meanest man in the world is, but Lem Whipple has stole a foot stove from the graveyard

to use for a pancake griddle.

A PREDICTION.

Has woman since Time's earliest And though just now man will not spring
I've set her heart upon a thing She never got?
I reckon not!
Find another man.

Had a Protest Coming.
"Ethel," said Mr. Brown, "I want you to give that young man of yours a little message from me." "Yes, father," said Ethel, blushing. "Tell him that your mother and father don't object to his carrying the morning paper away with him when he leaves."
—Tribuna.

Not Much Lost.
Two lunatics conversed in the lunatic yard. One had megalomania. Said he: "Had they not locked me up here, I should have been a second Napoleon!" Thoughtfully, the other contemplated a penguin devil on the asylum wall, then remarked: "The second Napoleon wasn't much shuck."

CLOSING DAY OF COUNTY FAIR DRAWS CROWD TO ELKHORN

About 150 visitors to the Elkhorn fair left the city this morning on the special which left at 7:30 a.m. and on the regular trains which were scheduled to leave shortly before noon. Many of the people who were deterred from making the trip yesterday on account of the threatening weather which prevailed early in the morning were induced by the agreeable conditions this morning to take advantage of the special accommodations on the St. Paul road.

Wrecking crew at work clearing up Monroe wreck.

Wrecking foreman "Jack" Reddy from Milwaukee is on the job near Monroe supervising the work of removing the engine and cars from where they were lodged on the side of the right of way and placing them on the track for removal to the shops for repairs that will be found necessary. A spur track is being built from the main line down the embankment to the base of the hill and the equipment will be righted and brought up to the main track over this spur. The engine was shoved down the bank yesterday and will soon be ready for removal to the shop.

Frank DeZurell, of Milwaukee, general passenger agent of the Monon route was in the city this morning. William Oram, who represents the Priceo lines in the same capacity, called at the local offices today.

CONDUCTOR MARSHALL BADLY INJURED AT ACADEMY CROSSING

Left Knee Badly Fractured and is Severely Bruised Over Entire Body
When Frightened Horse
Struck Him.

Harry Marshall, conductor on street car No. 49, was badly injured and his left leg badly fractured this morning
by a frightened horse at Academy street crossing. It is part of Mr. Marshall's duty to cross the tracks ahead
of the car and watch the crossing.
While running toward the crossing a single horse and rider, driven by an old gentleman and a little boy, whose names are unknown, were passing along the street at Mr. Marshall's right.

The horse became frightened at the car, jumping up behind it and the engine of a train which was standing on the St. Paul tracks and became unmanageable.

As he shied the horse struck Mr.
Marshall down and the buggy ran over him, bruising him about the hands and body and rendering him unconscious.
His left leg was badly fractured at the knee, some of the bones being driven through the flesh. Besides a large bruise on the forehead and a very painful wrist, the injured man was badly scratched and bruised over his entire body.

The owner of the horse was unknown, although he returned and was questioned by people at the scene of the accident. A number of people witnessed the accident and the injured man was taken to his home on Liver-
side street in Russell's ambulance, where the services of Dr. Pember were required for some time before the patient was properly taken care of. It will probably be two or three months before Mr. Marshall will be able to return to work.

AN OLD RESIDENT
PASSES AWAY TODAY

Mrs. Sarah Ott, A Resident of Rock
County During Life of 73 Years
Dies Suddenly This Morning.

Mrs. Sarah Ott passed away suddenly and unexpectedly at seven o'clock
this morning at the home 214 North Huff street. Although she was seventy-three years of age and had been ailing for the last eighteen months,
she was able to be about the house
and to attend to the duties of the little home and her sudden demise was quite unexpected by her family and friends.
Heart failure is believed to have been
the cause of her death.

Sarah Crall was born in the town of Center this county seventy-three years ago and she grew to young womanhood on the old homestead.
About fifty years ago she was married to Mr. Ott and moved to Janesville where she has lived ever since.
During the last six or seven years her son Arthur and his little daughter, Pearl, made their home with her and the sudden death
of their mother and grandmother, is particularly sad for them. Little Pearl, eight years of age, can hardly be consoled since she has realized that her grandmother can never come back to her.

Two sons, Arthur, who is a member of the local fire department, and Frank of Chicago, and one daughter,
Mrs. Harry Laymon of Missouri, Montana, are left of her immediate family, to mourn her loss. She leaves also three brothers: Eli Crall of Center, Matthias Crall of Iowa, and William Crall of Iowa.
The funeral will be held at Christ church on Monday morning and Rev.
John McKinney will officiate. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery, beside the remains of her husband who died several years ago.

RECORD OF INTENSE SUFFERING
FOUND IN WRECKED SCHOONER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Houston, Texas, Sept. 22.—Mute
testimony of storm-tossed, suffering sailors, marooned on a wreck schooner lost at sea, was found by ship captains repairing the old Kate Peters, towed into port several months ago a derelict. This schooner was caught in the Gulf hurricane which went inland near Mobile last year and for ten days it was thought to be lost.
Finally an English boat sighted the derelict and picked it up when on board were found three dead bodies of sailors and a fourth sailor with just the spark of life left. The hull was beached, but was recently brought into port for reworking.
The messages referred to were found carved with a knife on top of the hatch covers the deck house.
The first was under date of September
6, reading as follows: "Waterlogged six days; beginning to suffer agony for want of water and grub."
"September 27—Nothing in sight;
suffering intense; Bill just died and Frank is crazy."
"September 27—Agony, water, water; now I'll—"
The last inscription was scrawled and scratched over a wavy line
and the letters uneven and ill-formed, showing the writer was evidently weak and partly delirious. Between September 8 and 30 there were no markings, but under the latter date
the following message was carved:
"Water; in agony for water."
"October first appears the last inscription, hardly legible, ill-spelled and scrawling in every direction:
"About gone, goodbye, wife, mother, babies." Then as a final effort could be made the letters spelling "E. J.
Whitman."

It was on the second of the month
that the wreck was found and sprawled out on the deckhouse was the wreck of a man, delirious, shrunken and insane. He was taken into New Orleans, recovered, and is again
at sea, mate of the schooner Carrie Wilkins.

DANE COUNTY FARMERS TO GATHER AT PICNIC
Will Have First Gathering of Kind At "76" Farm Next Saturday—Instructive Speeches.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 22.—Dane County farmers will hold a picnic, the first of the kind in this county, at the

"76" farm, half way between Madison and Sun Prairie, next Saturday under the auspices of the Burke society of equity. Prof. R. A. Moore of the Wisconsin college of agriculture will talk to the farmers and will act as judge
in awarding prizes for corn. Prof.
Stephen W. Gilman of the university will speak in the afternoon on "The Modern Farmer as a Business Man." A program of athletics will be one of the day's features.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Peter Manser.
After an illness of about three weeks with rheumatism which developed into heart trouble, Mrs. Peter Manser passed away very suddenly shortly before midnight last night.
The sudden death came as a shock to her family who had entertained no fears that her illness was at all dangerous and when their hopes for her recovery were shattered so suddenly,
their grief over her loss is all the more keen.

Mrs. Manser was only 42 years of age, a woman in the prime of her life
and her family consisting of a husband and two children, Charles, aged twenty-one and Pauline, aged sixteen, can scarcely be reconciled to the thought that a life of usefulness such as hers has been, should be terminated
so early and with such little warning of the end.

Besides her immediate family Mrs.
Manser leaves a mother, Mrs. Victor of Kenosha, and six sisters, three of whom reside in Kenosha, one in Chil-cago, one in Evanston and another in Germany, where the deceased was born.

The remains will be taken to Kenosha tomorrow leaving here at 1:30 in the morning to enable Mrs.
Manser's mother who is very sick to have a last look at the remains.
From there the body will be taken to Madison where interment will be made.
Arlina Loh.

Many residents of this city will be grieved to learn of the death at Mercy hospital this afternoon of Miss Arlina Loh, a young lady nineteen years of age, who is well known among a large circle of the young people.

Miss Loh was taken sick last Sunday and removed to the hospital, but medical aid brought no relief to the sufferer and she passed away shortly before two o'clock this afternoon. She leaves to mourn her sudden loss her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Loh of 600 S. Jackson street, five sisters, Olga, Mrs. George W. Haney, Gerlie, Clara and Nettie, and one brother, Edwin.

Majority of Forty Nine.
Montreal, Sept. 22.—The latest returns of yesterday's election show parliament elected one hundred and thirty-three making their majority forty-nine. Of nine Canadian provinces, only Quebec, Laurier's native place, came anywhere near remaining faithful to him. Ontario went almost solidly against him and the same may be said of Manitoba and British Columbia.

Rich Woods Put to Base Uses.
Rosewood and mahogany are so plentiful in Mexico that some of the copper mines there are timbered with rosewood, while mahogany is used as fuel for the engines.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.
Rain fell yesterday in the Lake Region and during the night along the Atlantic coast from Maine to Virginia,
and still farther south in the Appalach-ians. The heaviest rainfall, day and night, was 1.22 inches at New Orleans, and fair weather in the North Central states today. Another barometric depression is forming in the West, but has so far been attended by rain only in the southern Plateau region, and western Canada.
In this vicinity the conditions are favorable for continued fair weather
tonight, and possibly Saturday.

Secret of True National Greatness

By Rev. JAMES P. MARTIN
Pastor of Hyde Park Presbyterian Church, Denver, Colo.

The enduring story of America is not yet fulfilled. The anniversary of a national birthday leads us to reflect upon the state of things. Calm judgment would lead us to see many defects and crudities in this passing era. Our history as a nation, our wonderful tales of fabulous wealth and unique physical advancement, parallels and resembles an individual who, hastening to get wealth and power and to be master of applying science to industry, has left vulnerable points in his own education; is like the man who, gathering generously, is spending equally prodigally. We have grown big so fast that we have become awestricken at our own size.

We might well sit at British feet and learn. We are confused of face at the thought of poverty and squalor, when our German friends are approaching the problems so wisely. We are ashamed because of our conceit and arrogance in our daily contact with men, but "the little brown man" of the east is thoughtful, here and might teach us manners. What shall we say of child labor; factory life in general; mining horrors; congestion in city life; ravages of disease? We surely cannot count ourselves as perfect, nor to have even attained unto our high calling.

We need right now, less of pyrotechnics, whether as fireworks or valu little bubbling from some so-called patriot the measure of whose patriotism is determined by the length of time and rapidity of accumulation in feeding at the public crib.

To my mind we need most to reflect soberly and deliberately as individuals every day the country over. The first thinking should be not of what other men ought to do, or of what investigating committees may discover, and so on, but of what each one as a citizen of ordinary capacity and intelligence can accomplish as he forms that part of the national entity confined within the limits of home or neighborhood, town or city in which he lives and votes. The true, sincere dedication of a patriot's own self to country after serious concern for its needs, may accomplish our Utopian dreams and effect results that shall stand forever.

That such dedication may be of profit and glory; each one has a stern duty incumbent upon him. He must make the most possible of himself and project himself far into the mass of the body politic. That brings me to the theme of the morning. The secret lies right here. To have a great nation, let each individual make himself wise, strong and self-supporting. We are not saying too much when we reflect that the test of every institution is the promotion of greatness in the individual.

The holy word of God stands for the glory of the individual, saying, "Let every man bear his own burden." Christ's estimate of the individual gives intensity to our thought. While the world is busy trampling men under foot, Christ is busy lifting them up. Christ did not consider external conditions. He went straight to man's soul and stamped it, "made in God's image."

Midway between selfishness and disaster stands Christ's philosophy, "Let every man bear his own burden," which asks each man to love his fellows and his God and thus become a great individual, gathering wisdom and goodness as he goes forth. In individual excellence we have the key of all problems, the solution of all vexed questions, the clew of every maze.

The secret of the increasing wages comes not so much by shortened hours or laws of regulation as by the excellence of the individual in doubling the quality and quantity of his work. When we will, we can double our wages, as a nation. Too many of us are buying tools of heavy labor when we should be developing intellect. Rely on self. Go early, stay late, give your nights to study, climb, make yourself indispensable, save the waste. Your fondest hope is then not beyond your grasp. The difference in men is not made by unequal laws, but by difference in measuring one's own value.

Which is better, to bring all men down to a common level, or to lift up the lowest to the level of the strongest, wisest and greatest? To return to our scheme, the secret of national greatness lies in personal culture, personal happiness, character and worth. The survival of the fittest is ours here. The boundary between strength and weakness lies there. The strong man will be stronger and become so. The weak man is content to stay as he is, and so loses his estate.

Give yourselves to preparation for the last grand struggle. Ten years of fitting for one year of sublime living is none too great. Such is time saved.

We need Paul in our life so that the faith may be spread. We want an ideal nation—ideal in equal rights for all; justice, that none shall suffer; a square deal, with handicaps for none to the advantage of another. The purpose of God in history is to exalt manhood to its place of glory, where all shall be "sons of God." "Behold now are we the sons of God." But are we living as sons or as servants? Let us make ourselves worthy of our high calling by living as God would have us live, for of a truth righteousness exalteth a nation, but "sin is a reproach."

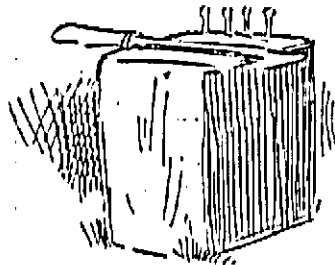

One of His Habits.

The man who is his own worst enemy always tries to blame it on somebody else.

GUILLOTINE FOR THE HENS

Work of Killing Chickens by Women-folk Made Easy—Old Corn Knife Will Do the Trick.

Most womenfolk find it no easy job to kill a chicken. Of course they should never be asked to do it if there is a man in sight, or within call, but if she has to, the guillotine will help her to do it easily and neatly. An old corn knife ground to a sharp edge and kept sharp, fastened to a block, will do the work. Place the chicken's head between the spikes, Guillotine for the Chickens.

hold the tips of the wings and legs together in one hand, so it cannot flap about, draw it tight, and the knife will do the rest in a twinkling.

SUMMER FEED FOR POULTRY

Chickens May Be Turned Into Garden With Profit Except at Certain Periods—Eat Many Bugs.

Lettuce is a good feed for poultry, and a bed of it should be started early for the purpose of giving the fowls a supply of green stuff. The fowls like it best if they can pull it from the stem as it stands in the bed. Cutting up the lettuce and feeding it in the yard is wasteful, as the fowls eat little of it when fed in that way.

Rape is a good plant to grow for the fowls. The seeds are quite large and so germinate easily. If the fowls have stripped one part of the poultry yard of grass, that part can be fenced off and rape sown on it. The rape will grow rapidly, even if the soil is not dug up. The fowls should be turned into it when it has reached a height of about one foot. They will strip the sides of the leaf and leave the stems and mid-veins. As soon as the poultry are taken out of the yard for a time, the plants will begin to push out new growth from the stems and mid-veins, and this process can be continued all summer.

There is a saying that hens and gardens do not go well together. This is a mistake; the hens can be turned into the garden with profit to themselves and the garden except during certain periods. One of these is just after the seeds have been planted and are coming up. At such a time the hens will do much damage by scratching. Another time when they must be excluded from the garden is when the tomatoes are ripe, as they will pick them. After the plants in the spring have become thoroughly started, the hens can safely be turned in. The more they scratch the better it is for the plants. They also help to keep the plants free from bugs.

The farmer cannot afford to keep his poultry shut up in summer, except during short periods, as mentioned above. The great advantage the farmer has over the city and village poultry raiser is that he can make his poultry work for him. The bug population of every farm is very great, and this population is drawn upon by the fowls.

Scaly Legs.

If any of the fowls show scaly legs the best remedy is kerosene mixed with lard and sulphur. Apply it warm with a brush at intervals of a week apart. Then, since this trouble is supposed to be caused by parasites upon the perches, see to it that the roosts are thoroughly swabbed off in kerosene.

POULTRY QUOTES

Sunshine and cleanliness are the best medicine.

These are gala days for lice. Fight them strong and hard.

But do not forget that shade is sometimes necessary in the hot days.

Kerosene will do deadly work. Pour it in every crack and crevice. Don't spare it.

Watch the grit box. The hens are doing so. Don't let them catch you napping and the box empty.

The keeping of the flock free from disease is the first great factor in the list of requisites for success.

The waste of grain on every farm is great; but a good flock of hens will glean much of it and turn it into meat and eggs.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely a skin disease, and curable through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is needed as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the chemists of the American Drug and Pross Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully cope with this disease, and after much investigation brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy, the effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action, its soothing effect and its permanent results. Reliable Drug Co. are commissioned by the association to sell it in Janesville.

BAPTISTS GATHERED IN ANNUAL BANQUET HELD LAST EVENING

Annual Church Day Exercises Were Attended by Some Three Hundred and Fifty Guests.

There was a large number of the members of the First Baptist church gathered last evening for the annual church day exercises. Supper was served to about three hundred and fifty people and was followed, by the reports from the different divisions of the church organization. Rev. J. C. Hazen made an excellent toastmaster and introduced the company with a number of very good and very appropriate stories during the evening. Before the first number on the program was called, Miss Francis A. Bennett of India and a former Janesville resident, brought greetings from the missionary fields. The program was as follows:

Orchestra.
The Church.
The Treasury—W. E. Clinton.
The Trustees—A. F. Hall.
Report of Decorating Committee.
The Records—J. T. Mitchell.
The Nominees—L. K. Crissey.
Orchestra.
The Societies.
The Missionary—Mrs. Dunwiddie.
The Ladies Aid—Mrs. Foster.
The King's Daughters—Mrs. Taylor.
The Helpful Circle—Mrs. Davis.
The Christian Endeavor—R. D. Currier.
The Sunday School—A. C. Campbell.
The Little Helpers—Frederick Taylor.
The Men's Club—J. H. Humphrey.
The State Convention—C. E. Clinton.
Mrs. K. Stoddard.

At the conclusion of the program a picture was taken, after which the company broke up and left for their homes, having spent a very pleasant evening.

LOCAL HARVEST WORK IN TOBACCO FIELDS

The Entire Crop In This Section Is Safely In The Sheds—Early Tobacco Is Curing Nicely.

There are very few crops of tobacco left in the fields in this section and it is safe to say that with the end of this week tobacco harvest will be at an end. The weather has been fairly favorable for the shedding of the crop and frost have held off long enough to see the last plantings out of the way.

The curing process is nearly completed in the case of the earlier crops which were shedded the last of last month, and the color is very satisfactory to the dealers and manufacturers. This has been evidenced by the tendency toward early buying which has nearly spent itself at the present time. While there are a large number of crops which have been purchased by the American company and others, including many independent dealers, it is estimated that there is still a large percentage of the crop in this state which is not contracted. Occasional crops have been sold during the present week, but prices have been more like normal and there has not been the eagerness in evidence so early in the harvest period. It is probable now that the 1911 crop will be on the market early as there is much of it that is nearly cured and should weather permit, many of the growers will have it taken down and stripped before Christmas.

POSSIBLE DELAY IN HARVEST OF BEETS

Recent Rains Have Started a Renewed Growth in the Beet Crop—Frost
Needed to Ripen Them.

Owing to the recent rains the sugar beets have taken on a renewed growth which may possibly result in some delay in the opening of the harvest season according to the officials of the Rock County Sugar Company today. In practically the entire territory in which the company has contracted beets the rains have done their work and it will not be before a fairly heavy frost that the harvest work can begin.

It is very likely that the harvest season will open in the northern sections of the company's territory first as the frosts will get in their work in those sections the earliest. Every thing at the factory is in readiness for the opening of work which is now placed at some time after the first of October.

LEYDEN MAN LOSES HIS FINGERS IN CORN BINDER

William Addee, Jr., Injured Yesterday Afternoon and It Was Necessary to Amputate Two Fingers.

William Addee, Jr., a young man residing on a farm near Leyden, had his left hand badly mangled in the gear of a corn binder yesterday afternoon. The member was so bruised and mutilated that it was found necessary by Dr. E. Woods, to whom he was rushed immediately, to amputate the middle and fore finger of the hand. He was in such a weakened condition after the eight mile drive that he had to be taken to the Mercy hospital where the operation was performed. He was not sufficiently recovered today to return to his home but expected to be taken there tomorrow.

REBEKAHS ENJOYED THEIR CELEBRATION

Members of the Local Lodges and Husbands Enjoyed Festivities at West Side Hall Last Night.

Members of the local Rebekah lodges, Numbers 26 and 171, and their husbands, enjoyed a splendid evening's entertainment at the West Side Odd Fellows' hall last evening. The event was given on the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of the order and the address of the evening was given by Mrs. Antie North, of Fox Lake, past president of the lodge in this state. The evening's program followed the banquet which was most elaborate and the entire affair proved most successful. There were a number of excellent musical selections which were interspersed with pleasing comic recitations and dialogues. Mrs. North spoke in a very pleasing manner of the purpose and accomplishments of the lodge and paid a compliment to the Janesville members of the order for their hospitable entertainment.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

By H. L. RANN.

There is a great difference in broad sows. Some sows seem to have no sense of family relationship and are just as liable to offer refreshment to a guinea hen as to a member of their own family. This usually results from carelessness. Provide the sows with a pair of smoked glasses and lead her family up to the booth every morning for a few days, after which no trouble will be experienced. The average sow is long on skill and short on intellect. In fact, we never knew a sow that had anything on a cream vat in point of refinement and culture, but patience and tact will accomplish wonders.

It is a pure waste of time to attempt to make a trotting horse out of the Clydesdale. We never saw a Clydesdale in our life that could wiggle around a half-mile track in less than seventeen minutes, yet some farmers are disappointed if they can't get to town and back the same day with a team of Clydesdales weighing 4,000 pounds. The Clydesdale is not a society favorite and never will be. He has the same relation to the speed ring as a dedicated wheelbarrow, but when it comes to loading a manure spreader over plowed ground he is there fifty-seven ways. As a driving horse the Clydesdale is a melancholy joke.

We have patented a fly net which will soon be placed on the market. This net is made of three thicknesses of cotton batting and can be had in three styles—the princess abdominal, the outfit hip reducer and the royal flush straight front. It has the approval of the board of health and the pure food commission and requires no staples, strings or suspenders, being held in place by perspiration and the force of gravity.

Miss Ellen King was the guest of Mrs. Hop Beach the 1st part of the week.

Mrs. Lottie Baker of Chicago and Mrs. Alice Harrison of California, were called here by the illness of their father, Mr. Daniel Silverthorn, who suffered a stroke of paralysis about two weeks ago. Owing to his advanced age there is very little hope of his recovery.

Footville is on the boom. E. H. Mattice is moving his store onto his lot just south of the drug store. W. J. Owen is erecting a new house just south of this and L. P. Silverthorn is building a house on his lot near the M. E. church. Frank Bladon has purchased the lot made vacant by E. H. Mattice and will build on it in the near future.

Mrs. Cora Fraser is visiting her parents.

The La Follette piece in the Saturday Evening Post is attracting much attention here this week.

Mrs. Ernest Ramsey and daughter, Belle, spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Albany.

SURE TO DIE.
MRS. JUBB—Wake up John, I'm sure a burglar is down in the pantry and he's eating all my pies.
MR. JUBB—Well, I don't care so long as he don't die in the house.

ONLY WAY.
BRONSON—My wife and I never quarrel. She does as she pleases and I do too.
WOODSON—I see—as she pleases.
BRONSON—Of course, I'm not looking for trouble.

HOW THEY SPENT HIM.
"I suppose everybody is anxious to serve you."
"Seems so," said the cardon millionaire, with a subpoena.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Friday, September 22, 1871.
The State Fair.

This exhibition begins in Milwaukee on Monday, the 25th inst., closing on the 29th. The arrangements are all completed for the fair and there is good prospect for a large attendance, both of exhibitors and articles. As the time for holding the fair has been so arranged it will not conflict with similar exhibitions in other states. It is expected that the Wisconsin fair will be patronized by many from abroad.

A Rough Ride.
A gentleman returning from Iowa a few days since over the Western Union road informed us that at a station near Heald a man was discovered on the track of one of the passenger cars, crawling a mile. He had ridden in that position seventy miles, and when found, was covered with dust, face and eyes, mouth and all completely enveloped so that he scarcely resembled humanity. Conductor Martin made him get out, wash himself

Origin of "Boodle."
Some of the authorities on slang words and expressions say that the word "boodle" is derived from the Dutch, and there is reason to suppose that they are in the right. It first came into common use in New York at the time of the exposure of the Tweed ring, and has ever since kept its place in the language as expressing something that no other word in the English language could bring out so well. It was also highly popular in the days of Jake Sharp and his henchmen.

No Vipers in New World.
Africa is the home of the typical viper. No species of the true viper inhabits the new world, though several kinds of snakes are commonly so called. The viperine snakes of this hemisphere belong to a sub-family of the vipers, known technically as the Crotalinae. Under this head come the rattlesnake, copperhead, water moccasin, bushmaster and the fer-de-lance.

Utilized Spare Time.
"One can accomplish much by utilizing spare moments." "That's right. That tall girl yonder has read seven summer novels this season while she was darning at bridge."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

and take a seat in the car. He had no money and wanted to get home to Milwaukee.

Some Potato.
N. Rose brings us a potato weighing eighteen and one-half ounces. It is the early Rose variety, though the above named gentleman does not claim to be the father of it.

Ticked to Death.
We have many times heard the above expression, when we could not see the application, but the other day we saw what prompted to be a practical illustration of it. Two boys were the parties, the larger one had the smaller one down, sitting astride of him, his arms crossed, allowing nothing free but his head. He sat there with a feather in his hand, lazily striking it in his victim's nose, eyes, and all over his face, seeming to enjoy the fun hugely. The people of laughter produced was sufficient to satisfy a minister's hand. The "boon" came upon the scene just then, which doubtless saved the boy from being "ticked to death."

Some Other Reason.
"Do you suppose your father objects to me because of the fact that I am a poet?" "Oh, dear, no. He has a judicial mind and never believes in condemning on hearsay evidence."

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS
COPYRIGHT, 1910 BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

"I came out here to think," she said—"at least to try to think. But I hoped that if you saw me you would follow."

"I'm glad," he said; "though I didn't know you were here. It's hardly likely we'll have so good a chance to talk again."

"Yes," she admitted simply. There was a little catch in her voice and she fancied her lips quivered like the lips of a tired child as she looked away from him, seeking again the sight of the sea as if she drew from it some solace, some more needed strength against her trials. "We must talk, of course. . . . I have been trying all night to think. . . . but everything seems so. . . ."

She left the sentence incomplete, raising her hands to press them against her temples and then dropping them with a gesture of utter weariness.

"Oh," she cried, "why did you come back? You promised, you went away, and I was sorry for you and prayed you might find happiness, Garrett. You promised, and—you came back—came back like a ghost to haunt me with memories and regrets. . . . Her voice rose to a pitch of wildness. "Sometimes, last night, I thought that surely you must be a ghost—that you had been executed, killed and buried, and were come back to be his punishment and mine, and mine!"

"His punishment—his?" he echoed. "Then, Katherine, then you do believe—"

"Ah, how do I know? What do I believe—what can I believe? I don't know. I can't think right; it's all so—so terrible. . . . Her tone fell to a low pitch of fatigue, dejection and bewilderment. She leaned heavily against the wall, watching the sailor, interminable succession of the surges. "You seemed dumb in my mind and fear in my heart when you bade me weigh what I once knew of the good in you against what I have learned of him. I tried—so hard!—to do so justly and still believe you the guilty one. . . . You swept the ground from under me with arguments, your attitude, your explanations; and though they were your unsupported words. . . . I never know you to lie to me, Garrett, and I couldn't, can't believe you would bring me a lie to torture me, just for revenge. . . . You made me think, and—at times I feared I should go mad, and then again I was afraid I wouldn't. . . . She turned suddenly to him and grasping his arms, lifting frantic, piteous eyes to his, "Oh, Garrett, Garrett!" she pleaded, half hysterically, "tell me you lied, tell me it isn't true, tell me it was you—"

He shook his head sorrowfully, and with a short dry sob she released him and fell back against the wall, shaken and trembling.

"If," he said, slowly—"if I thought it would make you happy, if I believed that any good of any sort could come of it to you, Katherine, if I could even think it safe, I would lie—I'd lie with a clear conscience and tell you it was I who killed Van Tuyl. I've taken time to think it over and I've tried to think straight, to think the way that would be best for you, and. . . . Well, I've come back."

"But why?" she repeated abruptly. "Why? What good can you do? Can you lift this weight from my heart, can you right the wrong to yourself, by lying here? Can you bring Van Tuyl back to life or make me—the man I married less than a murderer?"

"I came to protect you; you were alone and friendless."

"He would not harm me," she said in an uncertain voice.

"Do you believe that? Do you expect me to believe it when I have seen the marks of his brutality upon your arm?"

"He didn't mean it, Garrett. He has his temper and—sometimes he forgets and doesn't realize his strength—but he would never do worse. It's true—and, oh, I know it must be—that he did—what you were accused of—it has been a lesson to him, I'm sure it has. He—"

Garrett shook his head. "Then what made you write that message last night?"

"I'll Tell You in a Moment," He Tempted.

"I'll Tell You in a Moment," He Tempted.

It then matters must stand as they were; nothing must be allowed to happen to rouse Blackstock's suspicions. But if she knew that Power had been assassinated—could extorting conditions continue to obtain? Would she be able to continue to bear herself toward Blackstock as she had theretofore?

He decided to keep her in the dark as long as possible. He continued: "There were two of us ashore, you know—my companion as well as myself. It seems he stumbled upon the burglar in the fog and accidentally overheard a part of Power's final quarrel with—Blackstock. Then he—learned—constantly stirred the explanation, but she forgot to mention it—that a man named Handyside was to replace Power. So we thought it over and decided I was to be Handyside."

She was facing him squarely now, eyes wide with interest and alarm. "But—but how can you? What do you know about the work? The minute he—(she could no longer name Blackstock intimately, it seemed)—asks you to send or take a message—"

"I will cheerfully comply, if required," he assured her. "You see, I know enough about the system to make a stagger at operating. You forget my experience with the signal corps in the Spanish war—that taught me Morse; and it also interested me enough in such things to make me spend a good deal of time in the wireless room every time I crossed the water. I couldn't help picking up a working knowledge of the system under such circumstances. Don't worry; I'll make good when the call comes."

"But this Mr. Handyside—he may arrive at any time now; and then—"

"I doubt if he ever sees the island," Coast interrupted, smiling. "You see, the Corsair did run aground in Quaker's Hole; we were the amateur assess that got in her way. And we left her there. Now Appleyard—that's my companion—has gone back to see that Messrs. Flanagan and Heckscher and Handyside do nothing rash."

"He can prevent them?" A pucker of perplexity gathered between her brows. "How?"

"He'll manage somehow; he's very clever, Appleyard is—"

"But he must have some plan," she countered quickly; "and you would know it. You're keeping something back. What is it? What does it mean?"

"I'll tell you in a moment," he tempted. "But first I'll ask some questions."

Still puzzled, she held his eyes intently. "I can't imagine what you mean. But go on."

"You told me that he—Blackstock—settled here to work on his inventions. Do you think he has accomplished much, that way, since you came to the island?"

She shook her head slowly. "Not a great deal. His eyes have hampered progress, of course."

"I thought as much. . . . And do I understand that no one ever visits the island except your weekly boat from New Bedford?"

"No one. . . . That is, sometimes, fishermen."

"For what purpose?"

"I don't know; there was once quite a settlement of them down there, you know; and I understand they still use some of the buildings to store dried fish in. I'm afraid that never interested me much."

"You never watched them—?"

"No; generally they come to anchor after nightfall and are gone before daylight the next morning. Sometimes he has gone down to the beach to talk to them, but as a rule Mr. Power went with him."

"Their visits are fairly regular?"

"I think so; the schooner comes about once a month, I should say. But—"

"And between whistles smaller boats call?"

"Now and then, yes."

"Do you recall when the schooner was here last?"

"About a month ago, I think. But, Garrett—"

"Just a minute, and then I'll explain what I'm driving at. . . . Now isn't it a fact that Blackstock and Power were busied with the wireless as a rule for a few days before the schooner showed up?"

She nodded thoughtfully. "I never connected the two; but it was so. How did you know?"

"I merely guess. Now I'm going to guess again, in another direction. . . . You didn't inherit much from your aunt, did you?"

"Why. . . . a few keepsakes only. You see, she disapproved of my engagement to Mr. Blackstock, Garrett, and when I was stubborn, she changed her will, just a little while before she died. She left everything in trust to me, but I was to receive nothing until I divorced my husband, or he died. The house is mine, but not to rent or sell, nor may I live in it except alone or with a woman companion only."

"I thought—something of the sort. . . . Your private fortune wasn't large, was it?"

"Not large—between sixty and seventy thousand dollars."

"And you let Blackstock take care of it?"

"Of course. He was my husband, I loved and trusted him—then." The last word fell with a bitter accent.

"And while abroad—he gambled pretty extensively?"

"I'm afraid so. After he had consulted specialists in Berlin we spent some time at Monte Carlo and later at Ostend and Trouville. Douglas—went frequently to the casino with friends. He spoke once or twice of winning, but—"

"But never of losing."

She shook her head. "But what has all this to do—?"

"Don't you see, Katherine? . . . The man pretended to be well to do; in fact he had nothing. He married you for your money; and what you were to inherit. Disappointed in the latter, he took the former and gambled it away. That's why you're here, why he's making this desperate attempt to recoup. Appleyard guessed it down to the last detail!"

Bewilderment clouded her eyes. "But, Garrett, I'm afraid I don't understand. What desperate attempt to recoup? Who is this Mr. Appleyard, and why should he concern himself with my affairs?"

"I'll tell you." In few phrases Coast sketched succinctly Appleyard, his connection with the secret service bureau, his theory as to the smuggling conspiracy and the part Blackstock played therein, together with the selection of No Man's Land as a strategic base and distributing depot.

"The thing's plain as a map," he wound up in a glow of triumphant reasoning, himself momentarily unmindful of their greater and more intimate trouble. "Appleyard was right in every guess he made. . . . The location of the island is ideal for the purpose, just far enough north off the main-traveled line to be convenient; the steamer has only to swing a few points off her normal course to find herself in lonely waters, where she can make a transshipment without detection or noticeable loss of time. The wireless station is essential, enabling Blackstock to pick up the news to the schooner, which sets out, meets the steamer, takes off its consignment of dutiable goods, returns to No Man's Land under cover of darkness, the better to dodge the lookout on Gay Head, and leaves before morning to continue her innocent fishing trip. Other boats, small boats, call by night and remove the goods piecemeal, landing them at this small harbor or that—just as Appleyard figured it out. . . . And so we have them."

"You have them?" the woman repeated, perplexed.

"It's a practical certainty the schooner left New Bedford night before last; we saw her go, unless Appleyard is greatly mistaken. . . . And hasn't there been an unusual amount of wireless signaling going on the past day or so?"

"That is so. The day of the fog either Douglas or Mr. Power was constantly in the operating room. I remember now that as the fog continued Douglas seemed to grow more and more irritable. . . ."

"Because it was keeping the vessels from finding one another. Since then there has been the storm to blow the schooner off shore. Most probably she will try to make a landing tonight."

The woman moved a little away, as if suddenly sobered and brought back to realization of her position; again her eyes sought counsel and consolation of the sea.

"And since then—he has been busy?"

"Yes—and more irritable. That night he had been drinking more than usual; I attributed his bad temper to that. Almost all that evening he spent with Mr. Power in the wireless room, the door closed. . . . It was stupid of me, but I attached no especial importance to it. Now and then their voices sounded excited, but it wasn't anything unusual for them to quarrel, especially when Douglas was—drinking. I interrupted once, and Douglas caught my arm and put me out of the room. It was then he hurt me—as you saw. After that they quarreled more fiercely than ever—I think partly on account of the way Douglas had treated me. Mr. Power seemed to resent Douglas' roughness toward me. . . ."

"It wasn't an uncommon occurrence, then?" The rage smoldering in Coast's heart thickened his utterance.

Daniel in the Lion's Den. Dan. vi. Golden Text—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them. Ps. xxxiv:7.

(1) Verse 1—Who was King Darius, whom did he succeed, what kind of a man was he?

(2) Verses 2-3—What had been Daniel's history up to this time?

(3) What is the relative importance to success in life, of intellectual ability and an excellent spirit, that is a kind heart with polite and winning manner?

(4) What are the really essential qualities to success in life?

(5) Verses 4-5—Why did the "presidents and princes" dislike, and seek the injury of Daniel?

(6) What proportion of men are jealous of the success of others?

(7) Why are so many men jealous, instead of rejoicing at the success of others?

(8) Is it possible for all Christians to so live, as to perfectly please God?

(9) Verses 6-9—Are rich or highly educated men, as liable to be jealous, and seek the injury of another, as are the poor and ignorant?

(10) There are two classes of men, one which seeks to injure, and the other which seeks to help their fellows, where do we mostly find them, in or out of the church?

(11) What was the scheme of these men for injuring Daniel?

(12) Verses 10-11—Why is it wise or otherwise in these days, to open our windows, so our neighbors may hear our prayers?

(13) Does the narrative indicate, or is it anywhere in the bible stated as to how many times a day we should engage in formal prayer?

(14) Verses 12-15—What is the moral difference in the turbulence of killing a man in anger, and killing him by a cold blooded and systematic follow up plan?

(15) What reasons are there for or against the breaking of a promise that never should have been made?

(16) Verses 16-17—Was Darius sincere in saying it, and what reason had he to think that God would deliver Daniel?

(17) Verses 18-20—What did fasting avail the king, and of what use is it to us?

(18) What is the spiritual value of this miraculous deliverance of Daniel to us?

(19) If this story should prove to be of the nature of a parable, and not actual history, would its religious value be any the less or more to us? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20) Verses 21-23—Was the king just as bad in causing the cruel death of all these enemies of Daniel, as they had been?

(21) What is the character of the net to try by threat to make people serve our God?

Goat's Milk Highly Valued.

There are scores of foreign writers and medical experts who advocate the use of goat's milk for infants and invalids. In fact there are sanitariums in France and Switzerland that give goat's milk a prominent place in their systems of care. The milk is specially recommended for infants because of its similarity in composition to mother's milk.

Told of Traveling Men.

A traveling man who evidently had much to square with his wife bought $50 worth of dainty waists. Said he was getting something nice for her each place he stopped. Another traveling man bought his wife a milk scarf for $50 and tucked it in his grip without even a paper covering.

Prejudice, Ignorance, Narrowness Cannot Hurt Chiropractic

Its principles are too broad—its wonderful accomplishments so apparent that all the criticism, all the prejudice and narrowness of those who would willfully or ignorantly do it harm pass off as does dew before the morning sun.

Chiropractic is the dawn of a new world to the sufferer. Chiropractic cures the sick to health. What cures the discouraged, disheartened soul for the sayings of those who have failed him when Chiropractic offers him the way and brings him back to life and health.

Columbus' discovery of America was not a path of roses. The discoverer of Chiropractic Science (the release of pinched nerves through the vertebrae) has had all of the prejudice and narrowness of ages to contend with, yet right and actual accomplishment must win, so has Chiropractic become the new power of health. It is not a mystery but so simple that once explained to you, once the actual proof of its marvelous workings for the human body are placed before you—there is no longer room for doubt. Every day several sufferers are put on the road to health by our adjustments—you can as well be the next. Throw aside your fear of criticism—make up your mind to be well.

RAILROAD STRIKE IMMINENT.
 San Francisco, Cal.—Since the refusal of the Illinois Central railroad to grant an audience to a committee of employees of that road, the strike situation over the railroad system and San Francisco leaders of the workmen, the entire Illinois Central system and the Harriman line becomes acute. International President Kline said that the federation officials here to confer with Harriman line officers had decided upon to act for the federation to the men handling negotiations in Chicago, and he was of the opinion that a strike would follow the answer of Mrs. Markham.

THE HEART BREAKERS.
 In the Heart Breakers, the latest of musical comedies, which will be presented at the Myers Theatre on Friday Sept. 29, under the management of Mort H. Singer, many novel ideas are introduced, but the most novel of them all is the second act where three distinct rooms are seen, with a lower floor and two rooms above it. Here the action of the piece becomes fast and furious. The cast is headed by George Damerel, late of "The Merry Widow," and a company of over fifty including a perfect Princess chorus. There are many song hits such as "Somewhere She's Flirting with Someone," "Never Lose Your Heart in the Bright Moonlight," "Some Golden Day," and "If I had a Hundred Hearts."
